

THANKS TO WESTERN BIRDS' REVIEWERS AND ASSOCIATE EDITORS

Peer review is a critical step in the publication of a scientific journal. I thank the following people for their generosity in taking the time to provide this essential service sustaining the scientific quality of Western Birds for volume 48: Michael Andersen, William H. Baltosser, William Block, Sven Blomqvist, Matt Brady, M. Ralph Browning, María del Rocio Cabrera Huerta, Jay Carlisle, Carla Cicero, Chris Conard, Mark Drever, Jon L. Dunn, Richard A. Erickson, Doug Faulkner, Douglas J. Forsell, Kimball L. Garrett, Daniel D. Gibson, Judith Guinan, Steve Hampton, Michael Hardy, Steven C. Heinl, Jocelyn Hudon, Andrew Johnson, Oscar Johnson, Paul E. Lehman, Ronald R. LeValley, Mark Mallory, Steven G. Mlodinow, Joseph Morlan, Mario Pesendorfer, Ahva Potticary, Kristine Preston, David E. Quady, J. Van Remsen, Bruce Rideout, Bryce W. Robinson, John Rotenberry, Steve Rottenborn, Daniel R. Ruthrauff, Douglas Scofield, Steve Sherrod, Daniel S. Singer, Scott Stephens, Caroline R. Van Hemert, Scott Weidensaul, Sheri L. Williamson, Clark Winchell, Kevin Winker, Jack J. Withrow, and Christopher Witt.

In addition, our associate editors, Kenneth P. Able, Matthew J. Baumann, Daniel S. Cooper, Thomas Gardali, Daniel D. Gibson, Robert E. Gill, Ronald R. LeValley, Dan Reinking, and Daniel R. Ruthrauff, plus featured-photo editor John Sterling, also serve as reviewers of the manuscripts whose review they coordinate, and often of additional manuscripts at the request of other associate editors. Western Birds has grown to the point where it is not possible without the teamwork and dedication of this corps of experienced ornithologists. I'm delighted to be able to report that Doug Faulkner, with his deep expertise with the birds of the Rocky Mountains, is rejoining us as an associate editor. In addition, I'm deeply grateful to book-review editor Lauren Harter, assistant editor Dan Gibson, graphics manager Ginger Johnson, photo editor Peter LaTourrette, and webmaster/designer/typographer Tim Brittain for another year as essential parts of our team producing Western Birds.
